DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE IN INDIA.

Simla, the 25th August 1909.

The following Prospectus of the Pusa Agricultural College and Central Research Institute sanctioned by the Government of India, is published for general information.

THE PUSA AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE AND CENTRAL RESEARCH INSTITUTE.

PROSPECTUS.

(The prospectus is subject to such alterations as may from time to time be ordered)

1. Prelatory.

The Pusa Agricultural College and Central Research Institute owes its inception to the generosity of Mr. Henry Phipps, who in 1903 placed at the disposal of Lord Curzon, then Viceroy and Governor General of India, a donation of £20,000 (which he afterwards raised to £30,000) with the request that it might be devoted to some object of public utility in India, preferably in the direction of scientific research. Part of this donation was devoted to the construction of a Pasteur Institute at Coochpur in Southern India, and it was decided that the balance should be utilized in erecting a laboratory of agricultural research which it was hoped would form a centre of economic science in connection with that occupation on which the people of India mainly depend. This conception was subsequently enlarged, and the Government of India have now constructed a College and Research Institute to which a farm of some 1,300 acres is attached for purposes of experimental cultivation and demonstration.

In 1903, when the Research Station was sanctioned, it was intended to combine it with a College which should give a general agricultural education and should serve as a model for the few Agricultural Colleges and Schools of very unequal merit which then existed in India. Recently, however, this conception of the functions of the Pusa College has undergone a material change. It is now recognised that the first and most essential condition of any permanent improvement in the agricultural methods of this country is the widest possible diffusion of an organised knowledge of scientific and practical agriculture, and at the same time it is desired to make the country as far as possible self-supporting in the matter of development of agricultural training and research. A comprehensive scheme for the promotion of agricultural education throughout India has accordingly been drawn up, as the result of which it is hoped that every important province will soon be provided with a fully equipped College where students will for three years receive practical and scientific education in agriculture. The position which the Pusa College is intended to occupy in relation to this general scheme is that of a higher teaching institution. Its main object is to enable students who have passed with distinction through a course of a Provincial College, by means of a post-graduate course in one of the specialised branches of agricultural science to qualify for the higher branches of agricultural work.

2. The Pusa Estate.

The estate consists of 1,300 acres, of which 400 are arable, 400 are pasture; nearly all the field crops of the plains can be grown there.
